

3 of 3 • Keep it on track

Fractional Chief AI Officer

Senior AI leadership at the level you need, without a full-time hire.

Once you know what's worth building, someone has to keep it on track: setting priorities, holding suppliers to account, keeping the risks in check and turning technical noise into business decisions. Most growing businesses don't need a full-time AI leader for that. They need the right amount of one.

You get independent AI leadership for as long as you need it: a challenger to a team that's already delivering, or the person leading the work. Not a hire, and not a hand-off.

Core: your adviser and challenger

For teams that can do the work but want experienced challenge. Up to about 2 days a month.

- A monthly session to review, challenge and reprioritise your AI plan
- Progress reviews on live projects, and help when they stall
- Independent advice on big supplier decisions
- A regular check on risk and the rules, including UK GDPR
- Coaching for the person leading AI internally
- Priorities and actions in writing every month

From £3,500 a month

Embedded: leading the work

For businesses that need someone to lead AI without hiring an executive. Up to about 4 days a month.

- Your AI plan kept current, with the leadership team involved
- Every AI project tracked, each with a named owner
- Supplier selection run for you, and suppliers managed and challenged
- Rules for how AI is used: designed, put in place and checked
- One plan across your teams and suppliers, with regular reporting on decisions, risks and progress

From £6,000 a month

What I need from you

- Regular time with whoever is accountable for AI
- For Core, a named internal lead I can coach
- Sight of your current suppliers and contracts
- Somewhere to use AI tools (I'll advise if you're starting from scratch)

What this isn't. An employee, or the team writing your code. Your people and suppliers still deliver. I make sure the right things get built, get built well, and don't drift once nobody's watching.

From £3,500
A month • six-month minimum

Core from £3,500 a month, Embedded from £6,000 a month.
Both run for a six-month minimum, reviewed before renewal.
